Going KAPOW again in Miami

Recently, American, a long-time sponsor of Kids and the Power of Work (KAPOW) in Miami, hosted 150 fourth graders from a local elementary school at Miami International Airport (MIA). During the visit, students got the opportunity to experience a real-life working environment through a series of interactive activities at various MIA departments. For 19 years, American employees in Miami have worked with this program, which strives to teach children how to connect their classroom learning with real-world workplace skills, while exposing them to various career options. For more information on the program, please visit kapowfs.org (Internet access required).
